MEMORANDUM FOR Mr. Ralph Block (State).

[Col. W. McNamee (Army).

Major W. Gray, (Air Force).

Subject:

Notes on Organization and Planning.

1. Upon reading Dr. Stuart Dodds text, Systematic Social Science I have jotted down certain excerpts, some freely pharaphrased, which may be of interest to you and which you may find to be relevant to matters in the areas of interest of the Sub Committee.

GENERAL PROCEDURES The general procedures toward effective planning include:

- a. Defining a problem - locating or delimiting the field to be studies:
- b. Observing the facts - collecting the relevant data;
- c. Generalizing the facts - inducing principles:
- d. Systematizing principles - relating them consistently together;
- e. Verifying the above - deducing applications.

A PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFAFE ORGANIZATION

Planning goals stated functionally:

- a. To create offices, titles, specialists, authorities, etc.
- b. To create a group of interested participants and a supporting proup
- e. To areate allocation of Edinds, budgets, buildings, equipment, etc.
- d. To oreste standards, regulations, orders, laws, etc.

GOALS

A plan always involves goals to be achieved, scheduled, and the specifies amounts of listed ideals to be achieved.

Implementation There must be means to achieve the ends. Providing these means produces implementation.

Recording The facts of initial status and of interim and final quango must be recorded suitably for use and reference.

Districting

The region covered by a plan and its sub districting is essential to delimiting space.

OSD & DOS review(s) completed.

Programming

The agenda of steps to be taken, qualitatively itemized and with their quantities and correlationships specified are essential to achieving the goals.

Scheduling

The time table of these steps should be specified if the plan is to be an exact one, estimating the required forces, etc.

Staffing

The personnel, whether individuals, groups, etc. involved is activities, etc. must be specified.

Financing

The budget must be planned.

Popularizing

The participating parties must become beenly interested in taking the plan a success. Tensions must be raised until they cause the activity planned. This may involve propagands in many persuast veforms to stimulate participating parties and supporters to achieve the plan. They must fed it is their own plan not simply "just another plan".

Personnel

Four groups of participants include:

- a. The promoting agency.
- b. The research agency.
- e. The planning agency.
- d. The administration agency.

The research agency collects the facts (and intelligence) and prepares reports and keeps appropriate records.

The planning agency directs the plan at general headquarters.

The personnel of the planning agency should be the wisest, a lest, and most trusted leaders the group possesses. They receive the facts from the research agency and then decide on goals and implementation fixing the quantities including the time schedule to be achieved along the various ways of action. If they set too high goals the plan facts and the participants get discouraged. If they set too low goals personnel along resources are wasted and progress is slowed down. They must junge the Approved For Release 2005/08/02: CIA-RDP80R01731R003500200083-5 margin of plan over past achievement so as to stimulate effort without overdoing it.

The administrative agency takes the plan as set by the planners and is responsible for carrying it out.

Note that agency a first tenses the group for its progress.

agency b gets the truth in controversial issues or indestrate mituations. agency o decides on the basis of planned action.

agency d puts these into action.

PROBLEM TREATMENT

Further to the priority programming and processing of problems for solution by the Sub Committee it is suggested that the Tentative Brankdown of Planning Criteria draft 1/5/48 be considered by the Sub Committee. To appears to be of use as a check off list for problem treatment or combined with other selected factors to be of value in problem formulation.

If a perfected listing of factors, and sub factors could be consolidated bringing together the countderations and view points of the sub-count them in their interpretation of STHCC 504/1/2 and /6 as well as their understanding of each other as a result of discussions in committee it might serve as n valuable tool in planning and in processing problems to permit significant factors to be taken into account on a systematic basis.
